

Leading Up: Finding Influence in the Church Beyond Role and Experience

Far too many church leaders find themselves frustrated, floundering, or fired because their dreams for the church reach beyond the job description they were hired to fill. Whether you're a pastor, an intern, or a volunteer, you're not the one in charge of the congregation. Thankfully, neither is your boss; Jesus is the lead pastor for every church. His Spirit moves in each of us, and those gifted in leadership can find Christ-honoring practices for leading up—having influence that goes beyond role or experience. This isn't about manipulation or rebellion, but about humbly participating in the mission of God in your church. Leading Up is a leadership fable that unpacks a paradigm and practical tools for leading up in your church. Logan is a young pastor with a big vision for Evergreen Community Church, but cannot seem to move any of his ideas beyond wishful thinking. At a significant breaking point, a mentor comes alongside to mentor Logan on his journey of leadership, transforming both of these leaders and the church in the process. Logan's affecting tale will offer compelling insights for any church leader wanting to expand their leadership skills.
