

Poems Between Heaven and Hell

Childhood exposure to the rhyme and meter of poets like Poe and Longfellow gave me a lifelong love for poetry. In a bivocational pastor, ministering to seniors, and also an RN, helping mothers birth and breastfeed babies. These callings are special to me, but the one Ive felt most deeply throughout my life has been this creative call to write poetry. This is a republication of my first book of poems, written from my early teens until 1991. For me, poetic composition has been like preaching prophetic burdens. And as with sermons, I learn more in putting them together than I can ever convey in the pulpit. So, in sending forth this poetic collection of insights and epiphanies, I can only hope the Holy Spirit uses them to inspire and enlighten my readers as He has blessed their author through writing them.
